The Signatory

This document is not an independent agreement, but a technical/regulatory Attachment subordinate to the Main Contract:

Main Contract (Ref.):

The complete biographical data, contact details, and signatures of the Signatory are fully reported in the Main Contract identified above, to which this Attachment makes indissoluble reference.

Privacy Notice (GDPR):

Any personal data contained in this Attachment and in its related Principal Document are processed pursuant to EU Regulation 2016/679 (GDPR), according to the applicable privacy attachment and the rules referenced in the Principal Document. The applicable disclosure classification is stated in the cover notice.

Binding Vocabulary of the Attachment

The contractual terms below apply solely to delimit this Attachment. Terms already defined by law or by the Principal Document retain the meaning arising from the applicable source and are not redefined.

Term	Applicable definition
Candidate Contribution	Any graphic, text, photograph, video, recording, music, illustration, layout, campaign, template, software, code, script, query, documentation, or other creative output voluntarily submitted by the Signatory to the Company for possible use. Mere creation, presence on the premises, transmission, or upload does not transfer rights in it.
Acceptance Confirmation	The written instrument on a durable medium executed by both the Company and the author, including through two corresponding notices whose origin and arrival are proven, which uniquely identifies the Candidate Contribution, included files, Pre-existing or Third-Party Materials, transferred economic exploitation rights, economic terms, and acceptance as an Accepted Deliverable. A unilateral statement by the Company alone does not complete the transfer, which must be evidenced in writing under Art. 110 of Law 633/1941. Art. 108 of that law applies to an author aged sixteen or over.
Accepted Deliverable	Only a Candidate Contribution covered by a complete bilateral Acceptance Confirmation. Deliberate publication on an Official Channel may evidence use or editorial acceptance, but does not replace the written form required for the transfer of economic exploitation rights; accidental or unauthorized publication does not cure missing elements.
Pre-existing Material	Any work, asset, template, component, method, or file created or lawfully acquired by the Signatory before the specific Accepted Deliverable. The Acceptance Confirmation lists it to delimit the transfer and the necessary licence, without transferring ownership.
Third-Party Material	Any font, stock asset, library, software, music, image, trademark, dataset, or other element whose rights belong to a person other than the Signatory or the Company.
Source Files	Native, editable files technically necessary to modify, adapt, export, compile, or maintain the Accepted Deliverable, including dependencies and instructions to the extent transferable.
Official Channel	A website, social profile, repository, archive, or digital service held by or formally administered by the Company for communicating, publishing, or managing its assets.
Credential	Any password, token, key, authentication code, session, invitation, or other datum that enables or facilitates access to an Official Channel or Sensitive Asset.
Sensitive Asset	A repository, database, folder, document, code, credential, internal information, personal data, confidential information, or trade secret to which access is restricted by the Configuration, by law, or by the Company's organizational measures.
Portfolio Use	Personal and professional promotional use of only the final version already published by the Company, through the channels and subject to the conditions of this Attachment; it excludes sale, third-party licensing, and competing independent exploitation.

Art. G1 - Scope, Content, Channels and Brand

G1.1 Exclusive Function of the Attachment

This Attachment exclusively governs digital access and Credentials; confidentiality and security of Sensitive Assets; the rights regime for creative or software contributions specifically accepted by the Company; brand use, Portfolio Use, and reputation protection; and duties following termination of access. It neither assigns nor requires tasks, working hours, outcomes, continuity, coordination, subordination, or any duty to create content. It does not by itself establish or classify employment, an internship, a professional collaboration, or volunteering; nor does it govern accommodation, stay, or rights to use real estate. Any different relationship actually established remains subject to its mandatory legal regime and, where required, to a separate written instrument.

G1.2 Voluntary Contributions and Acceptance

Voluntary submission of a Candidate Contribution does not require the Company to accept, publish, or use it and does not by itself constitute a promise of compensation, an assignment of work, or a transfer. Guidance concerning visual identity, public project data, technical formats, security, compatibility, or editorial standards defines only the requirements of any resulting work and does not override the classification arising from the facts that actually occurred. Each transfer or licence takes effect only upon an Acceptance Confirmation and remains limited to the Accepted Deliverable and the rights specifically identified.

G1.3 Effectiveness, Access and Survival

This Attachment takes effect upon execution of the Principal Document. Technical access is temporary, personal, revocable, and limited to the Configuration; it ends on the End Date of Access Rights or earlier upon security revocation or termination of the Principal Document. Revocation of access does not extinguish rights, debts, or liabilities already accrued. Confidentiality, rights validly transferred, licences already granted, return duties, brand protection, and accrued pendencies survive for the period necessary and permitted by law. No provision is perpetual where the law requires a time limit; trade secrets remain protected for as long as the statutory requirements continue to be met.

G1.4 Official Channels and Credentials

The permissions selected in the Configuration identify the authorized perimeter only. Access to an Official Channel does not transfer ownership of the account, authorize further delegation, or permit personal use or use unrelated to the stated purposes. Every activity remains subject to the Company's security instructions and editorial authorizations.

G1.4.1 Credential Safekeeping and Security

Each Credential is personal, non-transferable, and usable only within its authorized scope. It is forbidden to disclose it to third parties, store it in plain text, reuse it for personal services, or operate through shared or inadequately protected devices. Intentional or grossly negligent Credential sharing triggers a penalty of € 200.00 per documented episode, recorded in the Register of Pendencies under Att. F, plus direct documented security costs and any proven greater damage. The Company may immediately revoke access as a precautionary measure.

G1.4.2 Publications on Official Channels

Publication on an Official Channel requires prior approval or full compliance with a written editorial plan. An intentionally unauthorized publication, a privacy-infringing or misleading publication, or one manifestly inconsistent with approved standards must be removed immediately and triggers a penalty of € 150.00 per documented item. If intentional or grossly negligent conduct causes suspension, blocking, or loss of a channel, a € 500.00 penalty applies, plus direct documented recovery costs and any proven greater damage. Penalties are not duplicated for the same material event. Arts. 1382 and 1384 of the Italian Civil Code and all applicable mandatory provisions remain unaffected.

G1.5 Trademark and Right of Disassociation

The name, logo, and other distinctive signs may be used only to identify the Company accurately or under written authorization. It is forbidden to alter them, incorporate them into one's own trademarks, suggest non-existent endorsement or relationships, or place them in a context reasonably capable of creating a false commercial association or serious and documentable reputational harm.

The Company may send a written notice identifying the content, the specific reason, and the required remedy: correction, disassociation, de-indexing, or removal. The ordinary deadline is 3 business days; it may be reduced to 24 hours for privacy, confidentiality, security, third-party rights, or manifestly unlawful content. Notice is sent by certified e-mail, registered mail with return receipt, or ordinary e-mail to the contractually elected address; for ordinary e-mail, arrival within the recipient's sphere of knowledge must be established under Art. 1335 of the Italian Civil Code. If the Signatory fails to comply without justified reason within the deadline, a single € 500.00 penalty applies to each item covered by the request, recorded under Att. F, plus any proven greater damage. If technical impossibility is not attributable to the Signatory, it must be documented immediately and the Signatory must promptly initiate the platform removal process; the penalty does not accrue during the strictly necessary and diligently documented period.

G1.6 Creative Contributions and Portfolio

The following provisions apply only where the Configuration activates the marketing or creative-content perimeter and, even then, exclusively to Accepted Deliverables. Personal works, unaccepted drafts, materials never submitted to the Company, and content merely created during the relationship remain excluded.

G1.6.1 Included Categories

This article covers Accepted Deliverables intended for the Company's communications or audience: visual identities and logos; graphics, illustrations, flyers, and editorial materials; texts, captions, and campaigns; photographs, videos, animations, recordings, music, and audiovisual content; templates and layouts; and materials for web, social media, print, events, presentations, and merchandising. The fact that a work depicts Company premises does not by itself transfer copyright.

G1.6.2 Transfer and Economic Terms

For each Accepted Deliverable, upon completion of the corresponding Acceptance Confirmation, the Signatory exclusively transfers to the Company, with the right to assign and license or sublicense to third parties, worldwide, in every language, on every medium, and for the full statutory term, the applicable economic exploitation rights specifically listed in that confirmation: publication; reproduction; transcription; performance, representation, and recitation; communication and making available to the public; distribution; translation; adaptation, modification, reduction, editing, cropping, synchronization, and combination; inclusion in composite works, collections, databases, products, services, campaigns, and merchandising; registration and enforcement of rights; and direct or third-party exploitation, whether paid or free of charge. Those rights are independent under Art. 19 of Law 633/1941 and their enumeration is not presumed to extend beyond what the law permits. Ownership of delivered copies and possession of Source Files are also transferred to the Company, without prejudice to rights in Pre-existing or Third-Party Materials.

The Acceptance Confirmation must state the adequate and proportionate remuneration applicable to the deliverable under Art. 107 of Law 633/1941 or, where the relevant conditions are documented, lump-sum remuneration compliant with that provision. The absence of employment remuneration under the Principal Document does not make the transfer free of charge. This Attachment does not convert such remuneration into employment pay or determine its tax treatment: classification depends on the legal basis and actual facts. Without documented assent by both parties, identification of the deliverable, transferred rights, or applicable economic terms, the exclusive transfer is incomplete and the Company does not represent to third parties that the right has been definitively acquired.

G1.6.3 Authorship, Modifications and Excluded Materials

The author retains moral rights and may claim authorship under Art. 20 of Law 633/1941. The Company is not required to display a visible credit in every use and may publish under corporate or collective credit, or without a named credit, where legally compatible; however, it may not knowingly attribute authorship to a third party or falsely deny the author's authorship. The author authorizes ordinarily foreseeable technical, editorial, and brand modifications, such as formats, dimensions, colours, text, translations, cuts, edits, and adaptations, provided that they are not actually prejudicial to the author's honour or reputation under Arts. 20 et seq.

Pre-existing Materials, tools, fonts, stock assets, libraries, general skills, methods, and styles remain owned by their respective rightsholders even where expressly identified. Identification excludes them from the transfer and, if incorporated into an Accepted Deliverable, delimits only the licence necessary to exploit the deliverable to the extent permitted by the relevant rights and stated in the Acceptance Confirmation. The Signatory must disclose in advance every Third-Party Material, licence, attribution obligation, and territorial or commercial restriction and warrants, within the limits of their knowledge and responsibility, that no incompatible element is introduced. Direct documented damage arising from intentionally or grossly inaccurate statements remains the Signatory's responsibility, subject to mandatory limits.

G1.6.4 Portfolio Use and Waivers

After the Company's first official publication, the author may use, without further authorization, only the published final version of the Accepted Deliverable on their personal website, Behance, LinkedIn, curriculum vitae, professional presentations, and personal social media. Self-promotion and the pursuit of employment or professional opportunities through those channels are expressly authorized and are not treated as commercial exploitation of the work. Portfolio Use is personal, non-exclusive, and non-transferable; it excludes sale, third-party licensing, merchandising, Source Files, internal drafts, confidential data, personal information, non-sublicensable third-party assets, and competing independent exploitation. It must truthfully state that the deliverable was created for ColivingLiguria, accurately describe the author's role, and not suggest additional employment, endorsement, partnership, or approval.

The deliverable's placement alongside other works does not by itself justify revocation. However, the right of disassociation under Art. G1.5 applies where the context creates a false commercial association, infringes law, privacy, confidentiality, or third-party rights, deceptively alters the deliverable, or exposes the brand to serious and specifically reasoned reputational harm. Where adequate, the Company must allow a correction or contextual separation instead of total removal; it may require removal where a lesser remedy does not eliminate the risk.

Before any use not covered by Portfolio Use, the author may request a waiver by writing to the certified e-mail address `colivingliguria@pec.it` or ordinary e-mail address `colivingliguria@gmail.com`, identifying the deliverable, channel, duration, purpose, monetization, and requested changes. The Company ordinarily aims to respond within 10 business days; this is an indicative period and does not entail a duty to approve. It may approve, partially approve, impose conditions, or refuse, and silence does not constitute consent. A waiver is effective only if issued in writing by an authorized person and does not modify the regime of other deliverables.

Art. G2 - Information, Access and Software

G2.1 Classification and Confidentiality

Information is classified as: Level 1 – Public; Level 2 – Internal Use; Level 3 – Personal or Confidential Data; Level 4 – Trade Secret where the requirements of Arts. 98 and 99 of the Italian Industrial Property Code are met. Classification does not replace verification of the statutory requirements and does not alter the personal-data regime under Att. D. Access does not authorize copying, disclosure, extraction, or use for purposes other than those stated. Documented breaches are handled in the Register of Pendencies under Att. F and, where the expressly stated threshold is met, may constitute an Event of Grave Breach under Att. T.

G2.2 Access Limits and Technical Protection

Where the Configuration grants access to a Sensitive Asset, that access is personal, limited to the stated purpose, and revocable. Google Drive access is limited to the folders specified in the Configuration; GitHub access potentially includes the entire authorized repository unless technically segregated. It is forbidden to exceed the assigned scope, bypass controls, export data, introduce unauthorized software, or use manifestly insecure networks or devices. The Signatory must promptly report anomalies, unexpected access, device loss, exposure of Credentials, or any other known incident.

The Company may immediately suspend access in the event of risk, anomaly, or cessation of operational need, preserve logs, and require reasonably necessary containment measures. Intentional access beyond the authorized perimeter, circumvention of a security measure, or unauthorized export results in registration of the episode under Att. F, recovery of direct documented costs, and, where the conduct concretely exposes people, data, systems, or the Company to a material risk, assessment as Grave Breach under Att. T, plus any proven greater damage and subject to mandatory legal limits.

G2.3 Least Privilege and Prohibited Persistence

Authorization covers only the accounts, environments, folders, repositories, functions, and period actually necessary for the stated purpose. Unless specifically authorized in writing, it does not include the power to create users or administrators, generate new keys or tokens, change account-recovery settings, connect external applications, enable automatic forwarding, duplicate repositories or archives, establish mirrors, backups, or personal synchronization, or maintain persistent sessions beyond the necessary period. Technical ability to perform such operations does not expand the legally authorized perimeter.

The Company may apply least privilege, segregate environments, require multi-factor authentication, rotate Credentials, limit downloads or exports, and require device disconnection where proportionate to the risk. Intentional creation of hidden or persistent access, knowing retention of a Credential after revocation, or unauthorized alteration of recovery mechanisms results in immediate revocation, registration of the episode under Att. F and, due to its capacity to compromise systems or data, conduct assessable as Grave Breach under Att. T, plus direct documented remediation costs and any proven greater damage.

G2.4 Restricted Use and Third-Party Services

Level 2, 3, or 4 information may be accessed and processed only to the extent necessary for the authorized purpose and may not be uploaded, transcribed, or forwarded to personal accounts, cloud services, artificial-intelligence tools, collaboration platforms, analytics systems, or other third-party services that have not been approved in advance. Technical permission to use a tool does not replace verification of the legal basis, contractual terms, location, retention, content rights, and applicable security measures. Where processing concerns personal data, the instructions and limitations under Att. D also prevail.

Communications strictly necessary to exercise or defend a right, comply with law, or make a protected report remain permitted, provided they are limited to what is relevant and use appropriate channels; this Attachment neither requires concealment of wrongdoing nor restricts recourse to authorities. Intentional or grossly negligent uploading of a Sensitive Asset to an unauthorized service requires immediate cessation of use, cooperation with deletion or containment, registration under Att. F, and reimbursement of direct documented costs; where it creates a material concrete risk to people, data, rights, or systems, the conduct may be assessed under Att. T, without prejudice to proven greater damage and without any automatic criminal classification.

G2.5 Traceability, Incidents and Retention

Subject to applicable law, Att. D, and the relevant notices, the Company may retain authentication logs, administrative operations, changes, downloads, exports, revocations, and anomalies for security, technical continuity, protection of rights, and incident-reconstruction purposes. Those records do not constitute predetermined legal evidence or prevent the Signatory from contesting them; they are assessed together with the other available evidence, in good faith and consistently with Art. 2698 of the Italian Civil Code. The Company limits access and retention to the persons, purposes, and periods justified by the risk and applicable duties.

The Signatory must cooperate with reasonably requested urgent containment measures without deleting logs, altering histories, destroying evidence, or continuing activities that may worsen the incident. They may retain, through proportionate and protected means, only evidence strictly necessary to protect their own rights, without disclosing or reusing it for additional purposes. Intentional alteration of logs or evidence, deliberate concealment of a known incident, or unjustified refusal of an urgent and proportionate measure results in registration under Att. F, suspension of access and, where the concrete risk is material, assessment under Att. T, plus direct documented costs and any proven greater damage.

G2.6 Accepted Software Contributions

The following provisions apply only where the Configuration activates the software or code perimeter and only to original code identified in an Acceptance Confirmation. Merely opening a repository, proposing a change, or uploading a commit does not complete any transfer.

For each software contribution, the Acceptance Confirmation must identify the repository, commit or archive, documentation, Source Files, dependencies, Pre-existing Materials, open-source components, licences, transferred economic exploitation rights, and economic terms. Upon completion of that confirmation and to the extent permitted by law, the Signatory exclusively transfers to the Company, worldwide and for the statutory term, the rights in the specifically identified original code, including reproduction, modification, adaptation, translation, integration, compilation, execution, distribution, making available, licensing or sublicensing, transfer to third parties, and exploitation in products or services. The transfer is assignable by the Company and includes the right to enforce the acquired rights.

Third-party and open-source components remain excluded and retain their respective licences. The Signatory must disclose them fully and may not include code incompatible with the intended proprietary use. General skills, methods, unprotected ideas, programming style, and pre-existing tools are not transferred; the specific original files created and accepted for the Company are included. Intentional or grossly negligent breaches of disclosure duties result in recovery of direct documented remediation or replacement costs and any proven greater damage, without duplication of the same item already recorded under Att. F.

To the extent stated in the Acceptance Confirmation, delivery includes the Source Files, instructions reasonably necessary for compilation or execution, a list of dependencies, relevant versions, and disclosure of secrets, Credentials, or configurations that must not be embedded in the code. It is forbidden knowingly to introduce hidden functions, undisclosed access, malicious code, artificial lock-out mechanisms, or personal dependencies intended to prevent the Company from using the Accepted Deliverable. Intentional breach of this prohibition results in revocation of access, recovery of direct documented analysis, remediation, and restoration costs and, where the risk is material, assessment as Grave Breach under Att. T, plus any proven greater damage.

Art. G3 - Termination, Reputation and Dsan2G

G3.1 Return, Deletion and Lawful Copies

Upon termination of access, the Signatory must log out, cease all access, return devices and Credentials, delete passwords, tokens, keys, and confidential copies under their control, and promptly report any technical residue. Documents whose retention is required by law, evidence strictly necessary to protect a right, and final public copies lawfully retained for Portfolio Use must not be deleted; those copies remain subject to confidentiality, minimization, and the conditions of this Attachment. If, after termination, the Signatory discovers technical residue or a previously unidentified copy under their control, they must cease all use, promptly inform the Company, and remove or return it in accordance with lawful instructions. This is a continuing contractual duty and not a future fact to be attested through Dsan2G.

G3.2 Reputation, Freedom of Expression and Remedies

It is forbidden knowingly, or with gross negligence as to reliability, to disseminate materially false facts or manipulated content capable of harming the reputation of the Company, its representatives, or third parties; to use threats, harassment, impersonation, or gratuitously insulting expressions unrelated to relevant criticism; to unlawfully disclose personal data, trade secrets, or confidential information; or to create false commercial associations. This protection applies during and after the Principal Document, within the limits of Art. 21 of the Constitution, Art. 2043 of the Italian Civil Code, Art. 595 of the Italian Criminal Code, and other applicable provisions.

The following do not constitute a breach: good-faith opinions, reviews, and criticism based on a true or reasonably verified factual core and expressed in a relevant manner; private communications to parents, family members, trusted persons, lawyers, advisers, doctors, or insurers; complaints and requests for assistance; statements, reports, or complaints to judicial, administrative, supervisory, or public-security authorities; and the exercise of defence, privacy, and, where applicable, whistleblowing rights under Legislative Decree 24/2023. Calumny, defamation, falsehood, unlawful disclosure, and any other conduct exceeding statutory limits remain unlawful.

Except in urgent cases, the Company sends a written notice identifying the content and allowing 3 business days for removal, correction, or corrective reply, using one of the channels and with the proof of arrival specified in this Attachment. Intentional or grossly negligent dissemination of prohibited content, or unjustified failure to comply after the objection, triggers a € 500.00 penalty for each autonomous item, without multiplication for mere copies or substantially identical sharing of the same episode. If, after a prior specific objection and formal registration in the Blacklist Register under Att. R, the Signatory intentionally republishes the same false or unlawful core, the penalty for the new episode is € 1,000.00. Each amount is recorded under Att. F; Art. 1384 of the Italian Civil Code and Arts. 33–36 of the Consumer Code remain applicable where relevant.

G3.3 Dsan2G Request, Content and Specimen

Where a person has actually received Credentials or accessed Level 2, 3, or 4 data, the Company may request, upon termination or in the presence of a documented risk, a Dsan2G identified by the code derived from the Principal Document. The request is addressed to the person who actually controlled the access or copies; Blacklist registration may justify the request but does not replace an assessment of relevance. The declaration concerns only personal status, qualities, and facts within the declarant's direct knowledge and control, consistently with Art. 47 of D.P.R. 445/2000. An adult does not declare in the first person operations performed by a minor, but may separately state checks personally carried out, information received, and matters they could not verify. ColivingLiguria S.r.l. agrees to receive it as a private party under Art. 2 of that decree.

False statements are subject to Arts. 75 and 76 of D.P.R. 445/2000 where their respective conditions are met. Classification of the facts, liability, and punishment belong exclusively to the competent authority. The Company reserves the right to preserve evidence, suspend access, apply contractual remedies, seek damages, and file a complaint or report with the competent authorities where it believes in good faith that the relevant conditions exist; no complaint is declared automatic or inevitable.

The following box is an unpopulated informational specimen that cannot be executed through this Attachment. A Dsan2G takes effect only after a separate and relevant Company request, completion with current facts within the declarant's direct knowledge, dating, autonomous execution by the declarant, and delivery through the stated channel.

Requested substitute declaration – Dsan2G

Subsequent request under Att. G

Dsan2G - specimen

Document ref.: T1-_____

Nature and effect of the declaration. ColivingLiguria S.r.l. agrees to receive this declaration as a private party under Art. 2 of D.P.R. no. 445 of 28 December 2000. Only statements concerning personal status, qualities, and facts within the declarant's direct knowledge and control are made under Arts. 38 and 47. The consequences under Arts. 75 and 76 apply only where provided by law; assessments, legal classifications, and contractual representations remain such. The declaration is made and signed autonomously after the Company's request. The Italian version is official.

Non-signable informational specimen

This box shows the content of a possible subsequent request. It does not collect statements, a date, identity documentation, or a signature and has no autonomous effect.

Only after a separate request may the declarant make the following statements, limited to facts under their control and within their direct knowledge:

- I. to have ceased all access and logged out from the Company's accounts, servers, databases, repositories, dashboards, channels, and tools to which the declarant actually had access;
- II. to have deleted from systems under their control all credentials, passwords, tokens, API keys, 2FA codes, and other authentication information, without retaining physical or digital copies;
- III. to have returned or deleted, to the extent technically available, Company files, exports, backups, and confidential materials, except for documents whose retention is required by law, evidence strictly necessary to protect a right, and final public copies lawfully retained for Portfolio Use under Att. G;
- IV. not to have disclosed credentials, data, or confidential materials to third parties, except for formally authorized uses or communications protected by law, and to have disclosed to the Company every known exception or incident;
- V. not to have accessed systems after revocation and, as of the date of the declaration, to have disclosed to the Company every technical residue or previously undeclared copy found under their control;
- VI. that the foregoing statements are limited to facts within the declarant's direct knowledge and control, with express disclosure of every uncertainty, technical impediment, or lawfully retained material.

Contractual penalties and legal consequences. Where the request is relevant, compliant with the agreement, and addressed to the person who actually controls the data or access, attributable delay beyond 2 business days may result in a penalty of up to € 250.00 for each business day, capped at an aggregate € 1,000.00 for the same request. The amount is determined according to duration, seriousness, and the concrete interest in performance; no penalty accrues during a promptly documented impossibility not attributable to the declarant. An intentionally false statement concerning a material fact about credentials, access, confidential copies, or disclosure to third parties may result in a penalty of up to € 5,000.00 only in proportion to seriousness, concrete risk, or harm caused, without prejudice to proven greater damage and without duplication for the same item. A promptly corrected clerical error, an expressly disclosed uncertainty, or a fact outside the declarant's knowledge and control does not constitute a false statement. Art. 1384 of the Italian Civil Code and Arts. 33–36 of the Consumer Code remain applicable where relevant. Arts. 75 and 76 of D.P.R. 445/2000 apply only where their statutory requirements are met; the Company reserves all reporting rights without any automatic criminal classification.

Delivery instructions

The declaration must be returned within 2 business days of the Company's formal request (request date: ; channel:) by one of the following methods:

1. PEC / digital submission: PDF signed with a qualified electronic or digital signature in CAdES/P7M or PAdES format, sent to the Company's PEC address shown in the recipient box.
2. Paper original: original handwritten signature; delivery/mailing to ColivingLiguria S.r.l., Strada Chiappella, 21, 17014 Cairo Montenotte (SV), Italy. If the signature is not placed before the receiving officer, attach an unauthenticated copy of a valid identity document under Art. 38 of D.P.R. 445/2000 using the protected channel specified by the Company; the copy is acquired and retained only as necessary. If sent by registered mail with return receipt, the mailing receipt must be forwarded by email or PEC within the same deadline.

Date, identification, and signature fields belong exclusively to any autonomous Dsan2G requested later.
